

Fidel Ramos

12th President of the Philippines

CSA CELEBRITY SPEAKERS

Fidel Valdez Ramos was the 12th President of the Philippines. He succeeded Corazon Aquino and governed until 1998, when he was succeeded by Joseph Estrada. The first half of Ramos' six-year term as President was characterized by rapid economic growth and political stability in the country despite facing communist insurgencies, an Islamic separatist movement in Mindanao, and the onslaught of the 1997 Asian financial crisis.

"One of the Greatest Presidents of all time"

In detail

He is currently the Chairman of Ramos Peace and Development (RPDEV) Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to the promotion of peace and development in the Philippines and in the larger Asia-Pacific region, supporting national interests and people empowerment. He remains an outspoken critic of the governments that succeeded his and continues to be an influential force in Philippine political life.

What he offers you

President Ramos offers a unique and interesting perspective on what's coming ahead in the Asia Pacific region.
